

DR. ALEXANDRU MARMUREANU

A RECOGNIZED MEDICAL

With a career spanning more than 30 years, Dr. Alexandru Marmureanu, a specialist in minimally invasive surgery, has successfully treated complex cardiac and pulmonary conditions, performing over 400 operations annually. He currently serves as director of multiple cardiothoracic surgery programs at three hospitals in Los Angeles and has published numerous research articles in the field.

In addition to his clinical work, Dr. Marmureanu is actively involved in charitable causes. He frequently travels around the world to train local surgeons and perform life-saving surgeries free of charge for patients in need.

Dr. Marmureanu's journey began in 1990, when he made the decision to leave Romania and continue his medical studies in the United States. He enrolled at New York University, where he specialized in thoracic and cardiovascular surgery. After graduating, he joined UCLA, where he continues to practice today. His professional achievements soon led him to become head of the cardiothoracic surgery department at several hospitals.

He completed his residency and research fellowship at NYU Medical Center in New York City, followed by advanced surgical training at Mount Sinai Medical Center. He later finalized his cardiothoracic surgery fellowship at UCLA. According to Dr. Marmureanu, living and working in Hollywood makes encounters with well-known figures almost inevitable. Over the years, he has treated numerous actors, musicians, and other public personalities.

Although bound by strict confidentiality rules and unable to disclose names, he confirms that many of his patients have been celebrities facing serious heart and lung conditions. His charitable activities have also brought him into contact with well-known figures such as Leonardo DiCaprio, Steven Spielberg, and Anthony Hopkins.

Despite having lived in the United States for over two decades, Dr. Marmureanu says he remains deeply proud of his Romanian roots and is always happy to return to his homeland.

When asked about the secret to his success, he answers with modesty:

“Hard work, constant learning, and doing your job well will always make people respect you and help you reach the top of your career.”
